Preparing for the Corporate Manslaughter Act

The Corporate Manslaughter Act comes into force in April 2008. Are you and your organisation prepared?

The impact of the Act on your council is potentially devastating. You cannot afford to let this legislation pass you by without taking the time to fully understand what it means for you. Attend this comprehensive half day seminar to ensure that you have the knowledge you need. Return to your organisation confident that you can communicate the implications of the Act to your workforce.

Local Government Chronicle offers you two opportunities to get to grips with the Corporate Manslaughter Act at this informative seminar taking place both in London and Birmingham. Book your place today to:

- Understand the Corporate Manslaughter Act and what it means for your organisation
- Prepare for the enforcement of the Act and determine what you and your organisation need to do
- Evidence health and safety and risk management throughout your organisation
- Create a risk management programme to mitigate issues of concern

Who should attend?

Local authorities, Police, Fire and Rescue Services, Voluntary Sector:

- Chief Executives
- Heads of Risk Management
- Corporate Risk Managers/Advisers/Officers
- Health and Safety Managers/ Advisers/Officers
